The District is unable to reissue payment checks the day of performance. If Contractor subsequently provides the Payee Data Record to the District showing Contractor is a California resident, the District shall issue a check in the amount of the difference owed and paid Net 10.

Contractor will be responsible for paying sales tax and, in all instances, the foregoing split shall be paid after deduction of tax.

The District will provide adequate point(s) of sale. If the District is to provide individuals to handle sales transactions, notification to the District MUST be in advance or the District may be unable to provide individuals to handle the sales transactions. SPONSORSHIPS

District sponsorships shall not be excluded by Artist/Contractor's sponsorship commitments. District sponsor signage shall be used throughout the venue. District agrees the signage for District's sponsors will not imply Artist/Contractor endorses the sponsor, its products, or services. Artist/Contractor shall not receive any revenues from any District sponsorship agreements. Artists/Contractor's sponsorship signage may be used only upon the prior written consent of the District, not to be unreasonably withheld. Each party shall notify the other party of any potential conflicts related to sponsorships to the extent it is made aware.

Artist agrees that upon discovery or notification of any occurrence of sound level exceedance by either the District, or a designated sound monitor or other designee, Artist shall immediately adjust the sound level to come into compliance with sound level specifications. If repeated sound level violations occur within concert performance after such notification, Artist agrees to immediately terminate the concert.

In addition to the above terms, Artist agrees that the District, in exercise of its discretion and judgment, retains all rights to adjust the sound level or terminate the concert performance as it may deem necessary to ensure compliance with the sound restrictions.

Current State Employees (Pub. Contract Code §10410):

No officer or employee shall engage in any employment, activity or enterprise from which the officer or employee receives compensation or has a financial interest and which is sponsored or funded by any state agency, unless the employment, activity or enterprise is required as a condition of regular state employment.

2). No officer or employee shall contract on his or her own behalf as an independent contractor with any state agency to provide goods or services.

Former State Employees (Pub. Contract Code §10411):

1). For the two-year period from the date he or she left state employment, no former state officer or employee may enter into a contract in which he or she engaged in any of the negotiations, transactions, planning, arrangements or any part of the decision-making process relevant to the contract while employed in any capacity by any state agency.

2). For the twelve-month period from the date he or she left state employment, no former state officer or employee may enter into a contract with any state agency if he or she was employed by that state agency in a policy-making position in the same general subject area as the proposed contract within the 12-month period prior to his or her leaving state service.

If Contractor violates any provisions of above paragraphs, such action by Contractor shall render this Agreement void. (Pub. Contract Code §10420)

Members of boards and commissions are exempt from this section if they do not receive payment other than payment of each meeting of the board or commission, payment for preparatory time and payment for per diem. (Pub. Contract Code §10430 (e))

2. LABOR CODE/WORKERS' COMPENSATION:

Contractor needs to be aware of the provisions which require every employer to be insured against liability for Worker's Compensation or to undertake self-insurance in accordance with the provisions, and Contractor affirms to comply with such provisions before commencing the performance of the work of this Agreement. (Labor Code Section 3700)

4. CONTRACTOR NAME CHANGE:

An amendment is required to change the Contractor's name as listed on this Agreement. Upon receipt of legal documentation of the name change the State will process the amendment. Payment of invoices presented with a new name cannot be paid prior to approval of said amendment.

5. CORPORATE QUALIFICATIONS TO DO BUSINESS IN CALIFORNIA:

- a. When agreements are to be performed in the state by corporations, the contracting agencies will be verifying that the contractor is currently qualified to do business in California in order to ensure that all obligations due to the state are fulfilled.
- b. "Doing business" is defined in R&TC Section 23101 as actively engaging in any transaction for the purpose of financial or pecuniary gain or profit. ### RECOMMENDATION

At the Board of Director's discretion.

BACKGROUND

Current Status of California Senate Bill 716

This bill would ban the use of the elephant guide (also called a bull hook/ankus) in the State of California beginning in 2018. It would apply not only to circuses but zoos and all other elephant exhibitors and facilities in California.

After passing through the Senate (29 ayes, 7 noes, 3 NVR), the bill passed through the Assembly Public Safety Committee (4/2/1) and the Assembly Arts, Entertainment, Sports, Tourism, And Internet Media Committee (4/2/1). It has been re-referred to the Committee on Appropriations on July 14, 2015.

Board Actions

On March 23, 2012, the OCFEC Board of Directors voted to terminate elephant rides at the Orange County Fair. This action terminated the contract with "Have Truck Will Travel." At that time, the Board did not adopt a broader policy around this issue.

SB 716 (Lara) – As Amended May 5, 2015

SENATE VOTE: 29-7

SUBJECT: Animal cruelty: elephants.

SUMMARY: Would make it a misdemeanor for any person who houses, possesses, or is in direct contact with an elephant to use specified devices designed to inflict pain for the purpose of training or controlling the behavior of an elephant. Specifically, this bill:

- 1) Declares that on or after January 1, 2018, it shall be a misdemeanor for any person who houses, possesses, or is in direct contact with an elephant to use a bullhook, ankus, baseball bat, axe handle, pitchfork, or similar device designed to inflict pain for the purpose of training or controlling the behavior of an elephant.
- 2) Provides that prohibited behavior includes brandishing, exhibiting, or displaying any of the devices, listed above, in the presence of an elephant.

EXISTING LAW:

- 1) Declares that it is a misdemeanor for any owner or manager of an elephant to engage in abusive behavior toward the elephant, including the discipline of the elephant by any of the following methods:
  - a) Deprivation of food, water, or rest. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (a).)
  - b) Use of electricity. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (b).)
  - c) Physical punishment resulting in damage, scarring, or breakage of skin. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (c).)
  - d) Insertion of any instrument into any bodily orifice. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (d).)
  - e) Use of martingales. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (e).)
  - f) Use of block and tackle. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (f).)
- 2) Provides that the actions of a person who maliciously and intentionally maims, mutilates, tortures, or wounds a living animal, or maliciously and intentionally kills an animal as a criminal offense. (Pen. Code, § 597.)
- 3) Specifies when a person overdrives, overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, drink, or shelter, cruelly beats, mutilates, or cruelly kills any animal, or causes or procures any animal to be so overdriven, overloaded, driven when overloaded, overworked, tortured, tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, drink, shelter, or to be cruelly beaten, mutilated, or cruelly killed; and whoever, having the charge or custody of any animal, either as owner or otherwise, subjects any animal to needless suffering, or inflicts unnecessary cruelty upon the animal, or in any manner abuses any animal, or fails to provide the animal with proper food, drink, or shelter or protection from the weather, or who drives, rides, or otherwise uses the animal when unfit for labor as a criminal offense. (Pen. Code, § 597, subd. (b).)

- 4) Requires punishment as a felony by imprisonment pursuant to subdivision (h) of Section 1170, or by a fine of not more than twenty thousand dollars ($20,000), or by both that fine and imprisonment, or alternatively, as a misdemeanor by imprisonment in a county jail for not more than one year, or by a fine of not more than twenty thousand dollars ($20,000), or by both that fine and imprisonment for violations of Penal Code section 597 (animal cruelty). (Pen. Code, § 597, subd. (d).)
- 5) Requires that if a defendant is granted probation for a conviction of animal cruelty, the court shall order the defendant to pay for, and successfully complete, counseling, as determined by the court, designed to evaluate and treat behavior or conduct disorders. If the court finds that the defendant is financially unable to pay for that counseling, the court may develop a sliding fee schedule based upon the defendant's ability to pay. The counseling shall be in addition to any other terms and conditions of probation, including any term of imprisonment and any fine. If the court does not order custody as a condition of probation for a conviction under this section, the court shall specify on the court record the reason or reasons for not ordering custody. This does not apply to cases involving police dogs or horses as described in Section 600. (Pen. Code, § 597, subd. (h).)

FISCAL EFFECT: Unknown

COMMENTS:

- 1) Author's statement of need for legislation: According to the author, "SB 716 simply codifies industry standards for elephant management by prohibiting the use of bullhooks, bats, and pitchforks to discipline an elephant. A bullhook is typically embedded into most sensitive areas of an elephant, which involves areas around the ears, mouth, and back of the legs. The use of this instrument also puts handlers at severe risk, should an elephant decide to rebel against the trainer. Since 1990, there have been at least 16 human deaths, and 135 injuries in the U.S. have been attributed to elephants. Simply put, it is time for the State to prohibit this inhumane practice."
- 2) Background:
  - a) Existing state and federal law prohibits animal abuse, and provides specific protections for elephants. As mentioned in the "Existing Law" section above, California law makes abuse of an animal a crime punishable under the Penal Code. Further specific protections exist for elephants, including (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (a).) which provides, "It shall be a misdemeanor for any owner or manager of an elephant to engage in abusive behavior toward the elephant, . . ." Id. The statute goes on to list specific conduct which is included under "abusive behavior," but does not limit the definition of abusive behavior towards an elephant in any way. A "bull hook" or "guide" used by an owner or manager to engage in abusive behavior toward the elephant is already a crime under existing law.

Enforcement of these laws is done at the local level by the local Animal Control Officer and local law enforcement.

In addition, federal law provides, under the Animal Welfare Act (AWA), that zoos, circuses, transporters, roadside menageries and exhibitors of elephants must be licensed and participate in record-keeping and marking requirements. Additional protections exist governing their care, handling, and transport. The AWA gives power to the Secretary of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture, whose power is further delegated to the Animal Plant and Health Inspection Service (APHIS) to administer and enforce the AWA's requirements. APHIS enforces the Act through conducting inspections and instituting rules and regulations for facilities. APHIS is required to conduct yearly inspections and investigate facilities whenever a complaint is filed.

Unlike California law, the AWA does not prohibit any particular instruments in the handling of elephants or other warm blooded animals.

- b) Two models for handling elephants: protected contact and free contact. There are two models for elephant trainers and caretakers to interact with elephants: "protective contact" and "free contact." In the protective contact model, the trainer or caretaker only interacts with elephants through a barrier or fence. In free contact the trainer/caretaker shares a physical space with the elephant. According to some experts, the bullhook/guide is necessary for free contact training or management. Without use of the "bull hook" or "gukle," free contact is not a viable model for interacting with elephants. In order to have a live performance involving an elephant, for instance, free contact is necessary. A live performance with elephants typically occurs in a circus, but can also include use of elephants in films, events like county fairs, or attractions such as theme parks and safari experience parks.

It should be noted that while California zoos accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums (AZA), along with many other facilities housing elephants no longer use bullhooks, the American Veterinary Medicine Association (AVMA) policy does not prohibit the use of guides/bullhooks, and many facilities nationwide have contacted the committee to state that they incorporate guides into their protected contact protocol.

AVMA policy prohibits the use of guides in a manner which inflicts harm on an elephant, but allows use of the guide as a husbandry tool for elephant management. "The AVMA condemns the use of guides to puncture, lacerate, strike or inflict harm upon an elephant. Elephant guides are husbandry tools that consist of a shaft capped by one straight and one curved end. The ends are blunt and tapered, and are used to touch parts of the elephant's body as a cue to elicit specific actions or behaviors, with the handler exerting very little pressure. The ends should contact, but should not tear or penetrate the skin." (Elephant Guides and Tethers, AVMA.)

www.avma.org/KB/Policies/Pages/Elephant-Guides-and-Tethers.aspx

"Guides and tethers are used for training elephants in some elephant management systems, and appropriate training is important for facilitating veterinary care. However, guides and tethers should only be used in a manner consistent with the promotion of optimum welfare of the elephant. Personnel using these devices should be trained adequately, as well as introduced to alternative management systems." (Elephant Guides and Tethers, AVMA.) www.avma.org/KB/Policies/Pages/Elephant-Guides-and-Tethers.aspx

- c) Elephants in the California entertainment and tourism industries: Impacted entities are two businesses where the public interacts directly with elephants. As mentioned above, all zoos and major sanctuaries in California have moved to protected contact and have ceased use of the guide tool. There are two remaining commercial organizations - which have 10 elephants between them - that have direct contact with elephants as their business model. Both claim they need to use guide tools in order to provide their services. The first is Have Trunk Will Travel, who provides elephants for work in films, television, commercials, traditional Indian weddings, as well as offering elephant rides at fairs and theme parks. They are the exclusive providers of elephants to the film industry and have worked on projects such as George of the Jungle and Water for Elephants. Their research and development of elephant handling and medical care techniques are recognized nationwide.

The second affected business is the Monterey Zoo, which offers a safari style bed and breakfast experience, public meet and greets with exotic animals and educational experience and research facilities all inside an expansive property outside of Salinas California. There are over 100 exotic animals onsite, with five elephants among them. Education, public interaction with exotic animals and research are all supported through a related non-profit as well as the proceeds from their ranch. The facility's animals are also stars of stage and screen, with their lions and bears, parrots, squirrels, yaks and more appearing in numerous television shows, commercials and films. The Monterey Zoo is currently undergoing a $10 million dollar renovation and expansion of their facility.

The committee also heard from The American Humane Association, the film industry expert veterinary officers who grant films with the "No Animal Was Harmed" certification for films, who also use the guide tool in their work with elephants.

Conversely, PAWS wildlife sanctuary offers tours of their facility with up-close-but-no-touch encounters with elephants, known as "Seeing the elephant" tours. Visitors are able to observe the elephant's habitat, special handling techniques for bull elephants, and observe positive reinforcement training to deal with medical problems and foot care. Education and conservation are combined with overnight options and vegetarian lunches. These tours would not be impacted by passage of SB 716.

3) Arguments in support:

- a) Use of the "guide" or "bull hook" is de facto abuse. According to the sponsor, a "bullhook is a steel-pointed rod resembling a fireplace poker that is used to prod, hook, and strike elephants in order to dominate and control them during training, performing, and handling. The sharp tip and hook are applied with varying degrees of pressure to sensitive spots on an elephant's body, causing the elephant to recoil from the source of pain. The handle is used as a club, inflicting substantial pain by striking areas where little tissue separates skin and bone. . . . Elephant calves are forcibly separated from their mothers (females elephants naturally remain with their mothers for life) and taught to associate the bullhook with pain and fear. While the elephant is typically restrained, handlers repeatedly administer sharp jabs and hooks with the bullhook, and strike sensitive parts of their bodies with the handle or metal hook. Thereafter, the elephant responds to the bullhook out of fear of pain (moving away from the device) and will be expected to perform a behavior on cue or suffer the painful consequences. . . ."

The president and co-founder of PAWS, which is a co-sponsor of this bill, states in part, "Based on firsthand observations, I have concluded that there is no way to humanely use a bullhook – a weapon resembling a fireplace poker, with a sharp metal point and hook at the end – to train and manage elephants. By its very design, the bullhook is meant to inflict pain and instill fear. I have spent time around many circuses and personally seen handlers forcefully hook, jab and strike elephants with bullhooks on sensitive parts of their bodies before and during performances, and as a matter of routine handling. It was very obvious by the elephants' responses that they both anticipated and experienced pain."

- b) The professional community of elephant handlers is moving away from direct human contact with elephants, and thus the instrument should be banned from use as outmoded. The East Bay Zoological Society, which owns the Oakland Zoo, supports this bill, explaining in part that it has used the management style called "Protected Contact" described in Comment 2 above since 1991. "The elephants and staff do not share the same physical space, and the elephants also have a choice of whether or not to participate in training sessions. This management style ensures not only the safety and care of our elephants, but also our staff. According to the Humane Society of the United States, "California zoos accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums (AZA) no longer use bullhooks, nor does the Performing Animal Welfare Society's sanctuary which is home to numerous rescued elephants. The AZA now also urges all its member zoos to switch to a safer and more humane elephant training system that does not utilize the bullhook." (Emphasis in original).

4) Arguments in opposition:

- a) Existing law is sufficiently protective of elephants. Numerous letters to the committee contain similar language and content to the effect of the following: In addition to state laws against animal abuse, and specific laws protecting elephants, there are existing federal regulations that strictly govern elephant care under the Animal Welfare Act, that are overseen and revised frequently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (USDA/APHIS). USDA/APHIS utilizes trained veterinary professionals who are instructed specifically in animal/elephant care and welfare to conduct regular inspections of all license exhibitors of elephants (and other animals)."
- b) The "guide" is a humane and irreplaceable aspect of elephant handling in direct contact with humans, which many vets and zoo keepers still need to use, in addition to use with performing animals. According to the Elephant Managers Association (EMA), who oppose this measure, "All animal species are vastly different in their husbandry needs and each species requires specialized equipment to ensure proper care. Tools such as the elephant guide (or bullhooks) are safe and productive components of elephant care and training. Elephant tools are not intended to injure or harm the animal and are proven and humane husbandry tools that are widely utilized by knowledgeable and experienced elephant care professionals in a variety of settings. They also add an increased degree of safety for the trainer, the animal, and the public."

Additionally, they add, "The American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) has gone on record supporting the use of professional tools, including the guide, to manage elephants." In particular, The EMA states, "All animal species are able to be trained using "operant conditioning." This is a type of learning in which the probability of a behavior recurring is increased or decreased by the consequences that follow. This teaching process includes both positive and negative reinforcement. Operant conditioning is used in all forms of elephant care, and the process of training animals responsibly utilizes a variety of science-based techniques which are critical to providing proper welfare and husbandry. Utilizing an elephant guide and employing positive reinforcement are often part of the same overall operant conditioning system." They relay a concern with reliance solely upon protected contact, which depends upon the animal's choice to cooperate, especially with baby elephants that are not yet conditioned to approach their medical treatment area, which is when elephants don't feel well; they won't come into medical pens for treatment. Sadly, this has resulted in more than one baby elephant's death from a treatable condition, an EMA representative asserts.

- c) Economic hardship: lost tourism and entertainment dollars. The Western Fairs Association, states in opposition, "Our organization has been monitoring proposed legislation regarding guides for several years. Groups including the Elephant Manager's Association, the Zoological Association of America, the Association of Zoos and Aquariums, the International Elephant Foundation Elephant Husbandry Resource Guide, and the American Veterinary Medical Association all recognize the guide as a husbandry tool to aid in caring of elephants and have policies in place for its use. ...We see the efforts to ban the guide -- effectively shutting down elephant exhibits and rides at fairs -- as the beginning of a slippery slope that has serious implications for all fairs."

The Salinas Valley Chamber of Commerce adds in opposition, "The Monterey Zoo is an important tourist attraction in our area and elephants are the flagship of their new facility. Should the proposed legislation in SB 716 be enacted, it would create severe barriers to the success of this responsible 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that provides so much to our community."

- d) Request for amendments: assignment of responsible oversight agency to existing California Fish and Wildlife Committee on "restricted species held by exhibitors," and one year extension of delayed implementation. Concern has been raised that if SB 716 were to become law and use of the bullhook/ankus is outlawed; there is not sufficient guidance in the measure to direct development of an alternative tool and approve adoption for use. For instance, if a tool is created that is similar in design, but without barbs or points at the tips (imagine something more like a cane than a fire poker), that implement would seem to comply with the intention of the bill to be a tool for "training or controlling the behavior of an elephant" which is not "designed to inflict pain." Who will be the agency authorized to make that determination? As mentioned above, the enforcement of animal abuse laws falls upon the local Animal Control and law enforcement; that disbursement of authority would make uniform compliance and adoption of accepted tools of husbandry difficult to achieve.

In order to address this situation, the Monterey Zoo and Have Trunk Will Travel urge the adoption of amendments to refer the implementation and adoption of any new husbandry tool to the Department of Fish and Wildlife. In support of this concept, they share the following:

"Specifics on animal husbandry and care as well as tools used in animal care for species requiring permits in California are regulated by section 671 of title 14 of the California Code of Regulations. Section 671 of Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations contains all of the specifics on the care and housing of restricted species held by licensed exhibitors, including husbandry tools. Per Section 671, the California Fish and Wildlife Commission has an appointed committee that is required to meet on a scheduled basis to address such issues as addressed in SB 716, and submit recommendations to the Director of Fish and Wildlife. After the Committee votes on such issues and presents their report to the Director, he then may present his recommendation to the Fish and Wildlife Commission, where the law may be modified."

"The Director of Fish and Wildlife's Advisory Committee is composed of representatives of Human Society of the United States, PAWS, Monterey Zoo, Have Trunk Will Travel, UC Davis, laboratories, education facilities, several other animal rights representatives, and animal experts as well as representatives from Fish and Game legal, enforcement and licensing departments. This Committee needs to have the opportunity to debate this issue and possibly come to middle ground on an acceptable means of developing and using the guide tool. The use of the guide tool (bullhook) should go through this proper channel where individuals with actual and specific professional experience with these matters can apply both science and experience to their task."

In addition to the amendment to refer the enforcement and oversight of the issue to Fish and Wildlife, Monterey Zoo and Have Trunk Will Travel also request an extension of the date of implementation, to January 1, 2020, in order to allow sufficient time for the administrative process to determine an acceptable husbandry tool, and the affected entities proper time to retrain their staff and elephants to its proper use.

5) Committee comments:

- a) Definitions: Is a "Guide" by any other name still covered by SB 716? The opposing sides of this legislation use differing terminology to refer to the same tool of elephant husbandry, supporters often referring to "bull hooks" or sometimes "ankus", while opponents refer to a "guide." As defined in, Literature Review on the Welfare Implications of Elephant Training, (April 2008), the guide is a shaft with a tapered metal hook attached, and it sometimes has a blunt metal point at the end. It is also sometime referred to as the ankus, (bull)hook, or goad. The guide extends a handler's reach so s/he may touch, push, or pull various parts of the elephant's body. A guide is used in all free contact programs in the United States, and may also be used in conjunction with protected contact.

This legislation prohibits the use of a bullhook, ankus, baseball bat, axe handle, pitchfork, or similar device designed to inflict pain... The bill does not include "guide" in its list of prohibited husbandry devices. Many opponents of this legislation believe that the use of a guide, when done properly, is not painful to the animal. They further argue that it is not intended to be painful, but rather mimic the physical interplay of tugging and prodding common in elephants. Additionally, earlier versions of this measure contained reference to the word "guide", but it was amended out. Therefore, there is some ambiguity as to whether use of the "guide" would be prohibited by this bill. The author may wish to clarify this by expressly including reference to guides and adding a definition.

- b) Conflict within scope of covered persons within PC 596.5 (a) and (b). This bill amends an existing section of the Penal Code, 596.5 which contains prohibited devices and abusive acts directed at elephants done by "any owner or manager of an elephant" and as of January 1, 2018 the new subsection (b) will prohibit use, including brandishing, exhibiting, or displaying or enumerated additional prohibited devices (bullhook, ankus, pitch fork, etc...), by "any person who houses, possesses, or is in direct contact with an elephant." The committee wishes to point out that a conflict in the scope exists between these two sections, with the latter being substantially more broad than the existing law (which will remain in force). The author may wish to amend subsection (a) to also address abusive acts by any person who houses, possesses, or is in direct contact with an elephant, in order to provide consistency within the section.

6) Prior Legislation:

- a) AB 777 (Levine), of 2007-2008, would have prohibited specified conduct in relation to housing, possessing, contacting, or traveling with an elephant. AB 777 was held in the Assembly Public Safety Committee
- b) AB 3027 (Levine), of 2005-2006, would have prevented the use an Ankus, bullhook, or similar device on an elephant. Would have prevented the use of any chain that is used to restrain an elephant, except if utilized for the shortest amount of time necessary to provide actual medical treatment. AB 3027 was held in the Assembly Appropriations Committee.
- c) AB 1000 (Horcher), of 1995-96, would have prohibited the chaining of elephants in their permanent facility unless the chaining was for training purposes limited to two hours per a day or veterinary care. AB 1000 failed passage in the Assembly Committee on Public Safety.

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC SAFETY
Bill Quirk, Chair

SB 716 (Lara) – As Amended May 5, 2015

SUMMARY: States that it is misdemeanor for any person who houses, possesses, or is in direct contact with an elephant to use specified devices designed to inflict pain for the purpose of training or controlling the behavior of an elephant. Specifically, this bill:

- 1) Specifies that on or after January 1, 2018, it shall be a misdemeanor for any person who houses, possesses, or is in direct contact with an elephant to use a bullhook, ankus, baseball bat, axe handle, pitchfork, or similar device designed to inflict pain for the purpose of training or controlling the behavior of an elephant.
- 2) Prohibited behavior includes brandishing, exhibiting, or displaying any of the devices, listed above, in the presence of an elephant.

EXISTING LAW:

- 1) Specifies that it is a misdemeanor for any owner or manager of an elephant to engage in abusive behavior toward the elephant, including the discipline of the elephant by any of the following methods:
  - a) Deprivation of food, water, or rest. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (a).)
  - b) Use of electricity. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (b).)
  - c) Physical punishment resulting in damage, scarring, or breakage of skin. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (c).)
  - d) Insertion of any instrument into any bodily orifice. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (d).)
  - e) Use of martingales. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (e).)
  - f) Use of block and tackle. (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (f).)
- 2) Specifies the actions of a person who maliciously and intentionally maims, mutilates, tortures, or wounds a living animal, or maliciously and intentionally kills an animal as a criminal offense. (Pen. Code, § 597.)
- 3) Specifies when a person overdrives, overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, drink, or shelter, cruelly beats, mutilates, or cruelly kills any animal, or causes or procures any animal to be so overdriven, overloaded, driven when overloaded, overworked, tortured, tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, drink, shelter, or to be cruelly beaten, mutilated, or cruelly killed; and whoever, having the charge or custody of any animal, either as owner or otherwise, subjects any animal to needless suffering, or inflicts unnecessary cruelty upon the animal, or in any manner abuses any animal, or fails to provide the animal with proper food, drink, or shelter or protection from the weather, or who drives, rides, or otherwise uses the animal when unfit for labor as a criminal offense. (Pen. Code, § 597, subd. (b).)

- 4) Requires punishment as a felony by imprisonment pursuant to subdivision (h) of Section 1170, or by a fine of not more than twenty thousand dollars ($20,000), or by both that fine and imprisonment, or alternatively, as a misdemeanor by imprisonment in a county jail for not more than one year, or by a fine of not more than twenty thousand dollars ($20,000), or by both that fine and imprisonment for violations of Penal Code section 597 (animal cruelty). (Pen. Code, § 597, subd. (d).)
- 5) Requires that if a defendant is granted probation for a conviction animal cruelty, the court shall order the defendant to pay for, and successfully complete, counseling, as determined by the court, designed to evaluate and treat behavior or conduct disorders. If the court finds that the defendant is financially unable to pay for that counseling, the court may develop a sliding fee schedule based upon the defendant's ability to pay. The counseling shall be in addition to any other terms and conditions of probation, including any term of imprisonment and any fine. If the court does not order custody as a condition of probation for a conviction under this section, the court shall specify on the court record the reason or reasons for not ordering custody. This does not apply to cases involving police dogs or horses as described in Section 600. (Pen. Code, § 597, subd. (h).)

FISCAL EFFECT: Unknown.

COMMENTS:

- 1) Author's Statement: According to the author, "SB 716 simply codifies industry standards for elephant management by prohibiting the use of bullhooks, bats, and pitchforks to discipline an elephant. A bullhook is typically embedded into most sensitive areas of an elephant, which involves areas around the ears, mouth, and back of the legs. The use of this instrument also puts handlers at severe risk, should an elephant decide to rebel against the trainer. Since 1990, there have been at least 16 human deaths, and 135 injuries in the U.S. have been attributed to elephants, primarily in circus-related incidents. Simply put, it is time for the State to prohibit this inhumane practice."
- 2) Federal Protection Afforded to Elephants under the Animal Welfare Act: Under the Animal Welfare Act (AWA), zoos, circuses, transporters, roadside menageries and exhibitors of elephants must be licensed and participate in record-keeping and marking requirements. Additional protections exist governing their care, handling, and transport. The AWA gives power to the Secretary of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture, whose power is further delegated to the Animal Plant and Health Inspection Service (APHIS) to administer and enforce the AWA's requirements. APHIS enforces the Act through conducting inspections and instituting rules and regulations for facilities. APHIS is required to conduct yearly inspections and investigate facilities whenever a complaint is filed.

The AWA does not prohibit any particular instruments in the handling of elephants or other warm blooded animals.

- 3) Guide, Bullhook, and Ankus are Terms which Refer to the Same Tool: The guide is a shaft with a tapered metal hook attached, and it sometimes has a blunt metal point at the end. It is also sometime referred to as the ankus, (bull)hook, or goad. The guide extends a handler's reach so s/he may touch, push, or pull various parts of the elephant's body. A guide is used in all free contact programs in the United States, and may also be used in conjunction with protected contact. Literature Review on the Welfare Implications of Elephant Training, (April 2008)

- 4) American Veterinary Medicine Association (AVMA) Policy Does Not Prohibit the Use of Guides/Bullhooks: AVMA policy prohibits the use of guides in a manner which inflicts harm on an elephant, but allows use of the guide as a husbandry tool for elephant management.

"The AVMA condemns the use of guides to puncture, lacerate, strike or inflict harm upon an elephant. Elephant guides are husbandry tools that consist of a shaft capped by one straight and one curved end. The ends are blunt and tapered, and are used to touch parts of the elephant's body as a cue to elicit specific actions or behaviors, with the handler exerting very little pressure. The ends should contact, but should not tear or penetrate the skin." (Elephant Guides and Tethers, AVMA.) www.avma.org/KB/Policies/Pages/Elephant-Guides-and-Tethers.aspx

"The AVMA recommend tethers only be used for the shortest time required for specific management purposes. Tethers provide a means to temporarily limit an elephant's movement for elephant or human safety and well-being. Tethers can be constructed of rope, chain, or nylon webbing, and their use and fit should not result in discomfort or skin injury. Forelimb tethers should be loose on the foot below the carpal joint, and hind limb tethers should fit snugly on the limb between the tarsus and knee joints. Tether length should be sufficient to allow the elephant to easily lie down and rise unless required for medical procedures for a limited period.. The AVMA also recognizes that shorter or otherwise modified tethers may need to be applied for limited period of time to perform medical procedures safely.

"Guides and tethers are used for training elephants in some elephant management systems, and appropriate training is important for facilitating veterinary care. However, guides and tethers should only be used in a manner consistent with the promotion of optimum welfare of the elephant. Personnel using these devices should be trained adequately, as well as introduced to alternative management systems." (Elephant Guides and Tethers, AVMA.) www.avma.org/KB/Policies/Pages/Elephant-Guides-and-Tethers.aspx

- 5) Under Existing Law, it is a Crime to Engage in Abusive Behavior Towards an Elephant: "It shall be a misdemeanor for any owner or manager of an elephant to engage in abusive behavior toward the elephant, . . ." (Pen. Code, § 596.5, subd. (a).) The statute goes on to list specific conduct which is included under "abusive behavior," but does not limit the definition of abusive behavior towards and elephant in any way. A "bull hook" or "guide" used by an owner or manager to engage in abusive behavior toward the elephant is already a crime under existing law.

- 6) Criminalizing the Use of the “Bullhook” or “Guide” Will Eliminate Elephants in Live Performances: There are two models for elephant trainers and caretakers to interact with elephants: “protective contact” and “free contact.” In the protective contact model, the trainer or caretaker only interacts with elephants through a barrier or fence. In free contact the trainer/caretaker shares a physical space with the elephant. The bullhook/guide is necessary for free contact training or management. Without use of the “bull hook” or “guide,” free contact is not a viable model for interacting with elephants. In order to have a live performance involving an elephant, free contact is necessary. Live performance with elephants typically occurs in a circus, but can also include use of elephants in films, or events like county fairs. If the use of the bullhook is prohibited, participation of elephants in those events will not be possible.
- 7) Argument in Support: According to The Humane Society, “The bullhook is the most commonly used device to train, punish, and control elephants. A bullhook is approximately 2 to 3 feet long and resembles a fireplace poker. It has a sharp metal hook and spike at one end and the handle is typically plastic or wood. Bullhooks are used to poke, prod, strike, and hit elephants on their sensitive skin in order to “train” them. Often the elephants are hit behind the ears and eyes which are paper thin and around their feet, mouth and trunk which are rich in nerve endings.

“Elephants are often hooked and hit with bullhooks before performances in order to instill fear and, in turn, ensure that tricks or other desired behavior will be performed on command, during training to teach and reinforce tricks, to punish the animals when they fail to perform as instructed, and to control elephants during routine handling. The handle is used as a club, inflicting substantial pain by striking areas where little tissue separates skin and bone. In response to criticisms that bullhook use constitutes abuse, the industry has publicly started calling it a “guide.” Just brandishing the bullhook provides a constant reminder to elephants of the painful punishment that can be meted out against them at the whim of their handlers.

“California zoos accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums (AZA) no longer use bullhooks, nor does the Performing Animal Welfare Society’s sanctuary which is home to numerous rescued elephants. The AZA now also urges all its member zoos to switch to a safer and more humane elephant training system that does not utilize the bullhook.

“In addition to the inhumane treatment of elephants, traveling shows and other performances that use elephants in the state also pose a threat to public safety by bringing people into dangerously close proximity to an incredibly powerful and stressed wild animal. The use of bullhooks promotes aggression and the device will not prevent an elephant from rampaging or protect the public when such an incident occurs. There have been numerous incidents where elephants have run amok, sometimes causing death, injury, or property damage.”

- 8) Argument in Opposition: According to The Elephant Managers Association, “With respect to the proposed bill SB 716, we would like the Committee members to be aware of some facts regarding captive elephant management:

“There are current, and widely accepted, professional industry standards such as the EMA Guidelines for Elephant Care and Management and the EMA supported Elephant Husbandry Manual, as well as the Association of Zoos and Aquariums’ (AZA) Elephant Standards and Guidelines. Additionally the American Veterinary Medical Association

(AVMA) has gone on record supporting the use of professional tools, including the guide, to manage elephants;

"There are existing federal regulations that strictly govern elephant care under the Animal Welfare Act and that are overseen and revised frequently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (USDA/APHIS). USDA/APHIS utilizes trained veterinary professionals who are instructed specifically in animal/elephant care and welfare to conduct regular inspections of all license exhibitors of elephants (and other animals);

"All animal species are able to be trained using "operant conditioning." This is a type of learning in which the probability of a behavior recurring is increased or decreased by the consequences that follow. This teaching process includes both positive and negative reinforcement. Operant conditioning is used in all forms of elephant care, and the process of training animals responsibly utilizes a variety of science-based techniques which are critical to providing proper welfare and husbandry. Utilizing and elephant guide and employing positive reinforcement are often part of the same overall operant conditioning system.

"All animal species are vastly different in their husbandry needs and each species requires specialized equipment to ensure proper care. Tools such as elephant guide (or bullhooks) are safe and productive components of elephant care and training. As will all specialized equipment, their effective use requires skill and training while their complete elimination inhibits effective and proper management techniques that are specific to elephants due to their size and unique evolutionary adaptations. Elephant tools are not intended to injure or harm the animal and are proven and humane husbandry tools that are widely utilized by knowledgeable and experience elephant care professionals in a variety of settings. They also add an increased degree of safety for the trainer, the animal, and the public."

ARGUMENTS IN SUPPORT: Supporters argue in part, “Animal exhibitors who work in direct contact with elephants – in circuses, elephant rides and other types of entertainment – rely on negative reinforcement training and the bullhook to cue elephant behavior. The elephant moves away from the bullhook to avoid pain. Handlers often use verbal commands that are sharp and harsh. The Protected Contact system used at PAWS, and in all California zoos accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums, relies on positive reinforcement training and use of a protective barrier between keeper and elephant. To cue behaviors, keepers utilize a “target,” which is a long---handled pole with a soft tip. In contrast to the bullhook, the elephant moves toward the “target,” and the behavior is reinforced with a food reward and gentle words of praise. Using this method, we are able to provide necessary husbandry and veterinary care, including specialized and more intensive care for our older elephants.”

ARGUMENTS IN OPPOSITION: Opponents argue in part, “When used CORRECTLY, an ankus is what a good trainer uses to let an elephant know which way to turn or when to pick up a foot etc. It is a tool which has been used for centuries and the reason it is used is because it does not harm the elephant but it can get their attention when their focus might wander or especially at times when they could injure a person simply due to their size (much like grabbing a child by the hand if they are heading towards something that might injure them). An elephant professional who has years of experience with elephants and elephant care should be well versed as to how and when to use an ankus correctly. To ban the use of the ankus is never going to do anything positive for the care and wellbeing of elephants; it will however do the exact opposite.”

PURPOSE

The purpose of this bill is to prohibit the use of a bullhook or related device to discipline, manage or train an elephant, as specified.

Current law provides that it is a misdemeanor “for any owner or manager of an elephant to engage in abusive behavior towards the elephant, which behavior shall include the discipline of the elephant by any of the following methods:

- a) Deprivation of food, water, or rest.
- b) Use of electricity.
- c) Physical punishment resulting in damage, scarring, or breakage of skin.
- d) Insertion of any instrument into any bodily orifice.
- e) Use of martingales.

- f) Use of block and tackle. (Penal Code § 596.5.)

This bill would repeal this section on January 1, 2018, and on and after January 1, 2018, replaces it with a provision that that is identical except as follows:

- This bill would prohibit the use of the proscribed methods for purposes of “management” or “training” of an elephant; and
- This bill would include within its prohibitions the “(u)se of a bullhook, ankus, guide, or pitchfork, including the use of those devices without making contact.”

RECEIVERSHIP/OVERCROWDING CRISIS AGGRAVATION

For the past eight years, this Committee has scrutinized legislation referred to its jurisdiction for any potential impact on prison overcrowding. Mindful of the United States Supreme Court ruling and federal court orders relating to the state’s ability to provide a constitutional level of health care to its inmate population and the related issue of prison overcrowding, this Committee has applied its “ROCA” policy as a content-neutral, provisional measure necessary to ensure that the Legislature does not erode progress in reducing prison overcrowding.

On February 10, 2014, the federal court ordered California to reduce its in-state adult institution population to 137.5% of design capacity by February 28, 2016, as follows:

- 143% of design bed capacity by June 30, 2014;
- 141.5% of design bed capacity by February 28, 2015; and,
- 137.5% of design bed capacity by February 28, 2016.

In February of this year the administration reported that as “of February 11, 2015, 112,993 inmates were housed in the State’s 34 adult institutions, which amounts to 136.6% of design bed capacity, and 8,828 inmates were housed in out-of-state facilities. This current population is now below the court-ordered reduction to 137.5% of design bed capacity.”( Defendants’ February 2015 Status Report In Response To February 10, 2014 Order, 2:90-cv-00520 KJM DAD PC, 3-Judge Court, Coleman v. Brown, Plata v. Brown (fn. omitted).

While significant gains have been made in reducing the prison population, the state now must stabilize these advances and demonstrate to the federal court that California has in place the “durable solution” to prison overcrowding “consistently demanded” by the court. (Opinion Re: Order Granting in Part and Denying in Part Defendants’ Request For Extension of December 31, 2013 Deadline, NO. 2:90-cv-0520 LKK DAD (PC), 3-Judge Court, Coleman v. Brown, Plata v. Brown (2-10-14). The Committee’s consideration of bills that may impact the prison population therefore will be informed by the following questions:

- Whether a proposal erodes a measure which has contributed to reducing the prison population;
- Whether a proposal addresses a major area of public safety or criminal activity for which there is no other reasonable, appropriate remedy;
- Whether a proposal addresses a crime which is directly dangerous to the physical safety of others for which there is no other reasonably appropriate sanction;
- Whether a proposal corrects a constitutional problem or legislative drafting error; and

- Whether a proposal proposes penalties which are proportionate, and cannot be achieved through any other reasonably appropriate remedy.

COMMENTS

1. Stated Need for This Bill

The author states:

The bill amends Penal Code Section 596.5, which already prohibits a number of cruel and inhumane elephant training methods such as the use of electricity; deprivation of food and water; physical punishment resulting in damage, scarring, or breakage of skin; use of martingales; and the use of block and tackles. However, existing law does not address the most common cruel and inhumane training devices used on elephants the bullhook.

Bullhooks are commonly used by elephant handlers to train, punish, and control elephants. A bullhook resembles a fireplace poker. It has a sharp metal hook and spiked tip, and the handle is typically plastic or wood. It is used to prod, hook, strike, and hit elephants on their sensitive areas of skin in order to inflict pain during training, performing, and handling.

Both ends of the bullhook are used to inflict damage. The hook is used to apply varying degrees of pressure to sensitive spots on an elephant's body, causing the elephant to move away from the source of pain, often causing puncture wounds and lacerations. When the hooked end is held, the handle is used as a club, inflicting substantial pain when the elephant is struck in areas where little tissue separates skin and bone. Even when not in use, the bullhook is a constant reminder of the painful punishment that can be delivered at any time.

There is an alternative method that can be used. In fact, all of the accredited zoos in California and the Performing Animal Welfare Society Sanctuary are utilizing this training method which relies solely on positive reinforcement to guide elephant behavior.

2. What This Bill Would Do

As explained above, this bill would prohibit the use of a bullhook or related device to discipline, manage or train an elephant, as specified, effective January 1, 2018.

3. Background; Supporters

According to the sponsor and supporters of the bill, a "bullhook is a steel-pointed rod resembling a fireplace poker that is used to prod, hook, and strike elephants in order to dominate and control of them during training, performing, and handling. The sharp tip and hook are applied with varying degrees of pressure to sensitive spots on an elephant's body, causing the elephant to recoil from the source of pain. The handle is used as a club, inflicting substantial pain by striking areas where little tissue separates skin and bone. . . .

Elephant calves are forcibly separated from their mothers (females elephants naturally remain with their mothers for life) and taught to associate the bullhook with pain and fear. While the elephant is typically restrained, handlers repeatedly administer sharp jabs and hooks with the bullhook, and strike sensitive parts of their bodies with the handle or metal hook. Thereafter, the elephant responds to the bullhook out of fear of pain (moving away from the device) and will be expected to perform a behavior on cue or suffer the painful consequences. . . .

Elephants are highly intelligent, powerful, and dangerous wild animals; there is no such thing as a “domesticated” elephant. Elephants in direct contact with humans present a serious risk and must be kept under strict control at all times. An elephant is not allowed to step out of line – not even for a moment – or she will be physically punished with the bullhook. Elephants would not voluntarily perform the grueling routines required in a typical circus act—these physically difficult tricks are only performed to avoid punishment. . . .

Protected Contact management uses positive reinforcement training paired with food treats and praise and a protective barrier between elephant and trainer; the bullhook is not used. With Protected Contact the elephant also has a choice to participate in training sessions. If they choose not to, then they may simply walk away from the trainer with no repercussions for doing so. Progressive facilities, including every California zoo accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums (AZA), and sanctuaries including the Performing Animal Welfare Society in San Andreas, California, utilize this method and are able to effectively provide husbandry and veterinary care to elephants in a way that is safer for keepers and veterinarians, as well as psychologically and physically humane for elephants. . . .

The East Bay Zoological Society, which owns the Oakland Zoo, supports this bill, explaining in part that it has used the management style called “Protected Contact” described above. According to the Humane Society of the United States, “California zoos accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums (AZA) no longer use bullhooks, nor does the Performing Animal Welfare Society’s sanctuary which is home to numerous rescued elephants. The AZA now also urges all its member zoos to switch to a safer and more humane elephant training system that does not utilize the bullhook.” (emphasis in original). The president and co-founder of PAWS, which is a sponsor of this bill, states in part:

Based on firsthand observations, I have concluded that there is no way to humanely use a bullhook – a weapon resembling a fireplace poker, with a sharp metal point and hook at the end – to train and manage elephants. By its very design, the bullhook is meant to inflict pain and instill fear. I have spent time around many circuses and personally seen handlers forcefully hook, jab and strike elephants with bullhooks on sensitive parts of their bodies before and during performances, and as a matter of routine handling. It was very obvious by the elephants’ responses that they both anticipated and experienced pain.

Animal exhibitors who work in direct contact with elephants – in circuses, elephant rides and other types of entertainment – rely on negative reinforcement training and the bullhook to cue elephant behavior. The elephant moves away from the bullhook to avoid pain. Handlers often use verbal commands that are sharp and harsh. The Protected Contact system used at PAWS, and in all California zoos accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums, relies on positive reinforcement training and use of a protective barrier between keeper and elephant. To cue behaviors, keepers utilize a "target," which is a long---handled pole with a soft tip. In contrast to the bullhook, the elephant moves toward the "target," and the behavior is reinforced with a food reward and gentle words of praise. Using this method, we are able to provide necessary husbandry and veterinary care, including specialized and more intensive care for our older elephants. The elephants cooperate with foot care, blood collection, trunk washes, physical examination, and a variety of husbandry behaviors without risk to our staff. The elephants willingly engage with keepers, and they display behaviors that indicate the training is a positive experience for them.

4. Opposition

The Western Fairs Association, which opposes this bill, states in part:

Our organization has been monitoring proposed legislation regarding guides for several years. Groups including the Elephant Manager's Association, the Zoological Association of America, the Association of Zoos and Aquariums, the International Elephant Foundation Elephant Husbandry Resource Guide, and the American Veterinary Medical Association all recognize the guide as a husbandry tool to aid in caring of elephants and have policies in place for its use.

We see the efforts to ban the guide -- effectively shutting down elephant exhibits and rides at fairs -- as the beginning of a slippery slope that has serious implications for all fairs. . . .

Another opponent states in part:

When used CORRECTLY, an ankus is what a good trainer uses to let an elephant know which way to turn or when to pick up a foot etc. It is a tool which has been used for centuries and the reason it is used is because it does not harm the elephant but it can get their attention when their focus might wander or especially at times when they could injure a person simply due to their size (much like grabbing a child by the hand if they are heading towards something that might injure them). An elephant professional who has years of experience with elephants and elephant care should be well versed as to how and when to use an ankus correctly. To ban the use of the ankus is never going to do anything positive for the care and wellbeing of elephants; it will however do the exact opposite.

I am a veterinarian in California who has taken care of elephants for over 20 years. I have seen first-hand how the health of an animal is greatly influenced by the amount of close up care and attention it can receive. . . . Elephants in human care are no longer roaming the plains of Africa or the jungles of Asia and over the centuries training methods have evolved to allow giant, intelligent, thoughtful elephants to safely interact with humans and other animals. The elephants which have been lucky enough to have been raised and cared for by professionals who take the time to teach them and work with them for years so they can go different places and be around different people and animals are by far the luckiest and healthiest. . . . An elephant (or any undomesticated animal) under human care is not the same as an elephant still living wild and it shouldn't have to be. We need to do everything in our power to enable the humans who spend the time and effort to teach and care for these amazing creatures rather than demonize them and ban one of their necessary tools. Any tool in the wrong hands can do harm but the answer is not to ban the tool!!

SUBJECT: Approval of Submission of Bad Debt Write Off

DATE: August 21, 2015

FROM: Kathlyn Keife, Accounting Supervisor

PRESENTATION BY: Kathy Kramer, Chief Executive Officer

RECOMMENDATION

Approve the submission of form STD.27 to the State Controller's Office for the discharge of outstanding debts for Mr. Mike Cruz in the amount of $745.92 and for Locallife in the amount of $5,000.00

BACKGROUND

Currently, when a District Agricultural Association (DAA) discharges an outstanding debt of $500 or more, the DAA submits a form STD.27 to the Board of Directors for review and approval. The form is subsequently submitted to the State Controller's Office for final review and approval.

The 32nd DAA submits two (2) STD.27 for the following debts:

1. Mike Cruz $745.92. This debt was incurred in 2008 by a former employee of the 32nd DAA. The DAA informed Mr. Cruz he was no longer eligible for direct pay of his medical benefits but was still responsible for his monthly premiums. Mr. Cruz paid monthly payments to bring the debt down but then defaulted. The Debt was sent to a collection agency to no avail. Mr. Cruz is no longer reachable.
2. Locallife $5,000.00. This debt was incurred in 2010. STD.210 contract number SA-176-10SP in the amount of $38,500.00 was entered into with the 32nd DAA. The purpose of the contract was for a mobile marketing sponsorship during the 2010 Fair. Locallife was not satisfied with the performance of the tour. Tandem modified the contract by amending the original contract by $5,000.00. Locallife was not satisfied and refused to pay the remaining $5,000.00 balance due. Multiple attempts were made to contact Locallife, to no avail. This was not sent to a collection agency. The 32nd DAA believes an amendment to the contract with Locallife (less the debt of the remaining $5,000.00) would have been the best option, but was unable to contact Locallife, which made it unfeasible.

Further attempts to collect these debts are not cost effective.

RECOMMENDATION

If deemed necessary, approve the layout pending review by Staff.

BACKGROUND

During the latter part of the 2015 OC Fair Tel Phil approached the Association about relocating their modular mobile homes and tent to a new location within their existing footprint. Tel Phil presented a concept and Staff reviewed the request. Staff provided feedback to Tel Phil in order to ensure the new location would not be a challenge to the Association's events. After further review by Tel Phil they decided to place the modular homes and tent as identified in the Rental Agreement in the same place however the tent will be shifted 90 degrees enabling a different presentation. Based on Staff's review, this does not present a material change in use of the space identified in the Rental Agreement. Staff requested Tel Phil provide a layout of the modular homes and tent in order for Staff to review it with the Board.
